

ENDOWED WITH FAITH ONLY,
Mr. Gerry's Society Trying to Close Up the Borachah Orphanage.

Superintendent Jenkins of Mr. Gerry's society instructed Agent Wilson a month ago to investigate the Borachah Orphanage, at 329 East Fiftieth street. The institution is an auxiliary of the faith cure movement of the Rev. A. B. Simpson, whose headquarters is the Madison Avenue Tabernacle. Mrs. O. S. Schmitz has charge of the orphanage, and from her Agent Wilson says he learned that the ten children in the house were dependent upon prayer for food and other necessities of life. Agent Wilson also says that the children were dependent upon prayer for sickness. Mr. Jenkins and Justice Duffy yesterday called upon Mr. Simpson and Mrs. Schmitz to the Yorkville Police Court. The summons was issued in conformance with a section of the Penal Code which prohibits any person from boarding or keeping children under a care without having a license from the Board of Health or without having the institution incorporated. The Borachah Orphanage has not been incorporated.

The substance of Mrs. Schmitz's testimony was that she started the orphanage in September on $100, and had relied entirely upon the money for its support. The money has always been on time, and there are now ten children in the orphanage, she claims, well cared for, and the children are healthy. Mr. Schmitz and Justice Duffy paroled them until Saturday.

Mr. Jenkins said yesterday: "This society does not believe in faith institutions, particularly for children. I don't charge Mr. Simpson or Mrs. Schmitz with anything criminal. My opinion is that they are sincere, but their reliance upon faith may lead to neglect of the children, especially in sickness. On Saturday I shall oppose Mr. Simpson, and the attorney general, if a hearing is held, will try to show him that his papers for papers incorporating the orphanage."

Mr. Simpson said that his lawyer, Edward Gilman, had told him that he could not get a license, or, if he did, it would be taken away for a license, or notify Justice Duffy that he had taken steps to have the orphanage incorporated. Mr. Simpson said there was money in the treasury to run the house for two months.

Dr. Amelia Barrett of 261 West Twenty-third street says she is the physician in charge of the orphanage, and calls twice several times a week.

THEY TESTIFIED FOR THE DEFENCE.Adding Perjury to Laziness, and Making Clemency Out of the Question.

Joseph Steier and Simon Gilett, two hard-working young men, were arraigned yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas on a charge of larceny, and a bond quit from the rooms of George Cohen of 6 Bayard street, on Oct. 7, at noon. They were caught with the stolen property in their possession, but they demanded a trial. They could not afford to hire a lawyer, and Judge Converse assigned Lawyer Suydam to defend them. Lawyer Suydam to defend them, and Justice Duffy to preside over the trial.

After Assistant District Attorney Fitzgerald had proved the theft, and the arrest of the defendants in Forest street with the plunder, Steier took the witness stand.

"I was walking down Forest street," he testified, "when that young fellow (Gilett) comes up to me and says, 'I want you to come to my room.' I said, 'I am a working man, and I have no time to go to your room.' Steier, who I never seen before, had two bundles, one in each hand, and said, 'Come with me.'

"I think that I will leave the premises of cross-examination," he said, "but after a thorough examination, I will give you my answer." Mr. Fitzgerald asked him if he had any objection to the trial. "I do not care to cross-examine you," he said.

Lawyer Suydam did cross-examine Steier, but he stuck by his story.

"I ask you to return to the jury," said Steier, "that you have a reasonable doubt as to whether or not I am guilty, and that you will give me exactly what it is they ought to give the benefit of the doubt."

"I will charge that, though it is a little involved," replied Judge Converse.

But the jury had no doubt of any kind, for without quitting their seats they convicted Steier and Gilett, and Justice Duffy, who had sentenced them to their defendant perjury, he would sentence each of them to State prison for five years—the extreme penalty under the conviction.

Greeting the Anchor's Passengers.

The steamer Ethelio brought the belated passengers of the disabled Anchor line to the city yesterday morning. The friends of a large portion of the passengers on pier, and greeted them cordially, and some of them were invited to dinner, but the bottom was clean-out. The Ethelio had 133 first cabin, 120 second cabin, and 600 steerage passengers of her own, besides 100 and second cabin passengers, and 320 steerage passengers from the Anchor. Two babies were born on the steamer, and the anchor line, and two steerage, and two steerage passengers died, and were buried at sea.

The Anchor's passengers had a good time at St. John's while waiting for the Ethelio to come and take them to New York. They were entertained at the hotel, and had a great party right in their cabin, and divided in four, so that the bottom was clean-out.
